Webinar: Denial and dementia

Perhaps your loved one is in denial about their condition? Or is resistant to bringing in the help they need? Maybe other family members don't recognise the same changes you have?

During this one-hour webinar, we'll discuss strategies for managing the care of someone who is in denial about their condition or is having a hard time admitting that they need help. We will also walk through strategies for supporting family members who may be in denial. By establishing a supportive environment, families can work together to provide the best care for loved ones.
